Welcome message:

Translational research of medicinal plants used in traditional medicine may serve as the major source of therapeutic alternative. Drug discovery and development from medicinal plants is a challenging task, which requires expertise and experience. Newer technologies are employed to understand the chemistry, pharmacological activity and their underlying mechanisms of action of medicinal plants as a lead towards drug development from natural resources. Traditionally used Indian Medicinal plant has been explored as a potential candidate for the development of newer drug from several decades. So, our Ancestral knowledge may provide an effective alternative to combat this pandemic situation through translational research approach.

This seminar will be highlighting on several critical and contemporary issues for therapeutic evaluation leading to drug discovery & development from medicinal plants together with their scientific validation, quality evaluation and safety related aspects.

We cordially invite you all to participate in the 9th Convention of SFE-India & national seminar and explore the opportunity through dissemination of knowledge for promotion and development of medicinal plants together with the array of eminent scientists, researchers, industry professionals, traditional healthcare practitioners and technologists to make the seminar a great success.
